Customer: Hansen & Yuncken & Leighton Contractors Joint Venture

Project: New Royal Adelaide Hospital

Project Profile: State Government Infrastructure Project

Update

This project is now moving rapidly towards its completion date in approximately June 2016.

The site is a buzz of activity with so many people working there and Nilsen adds its share with more than 300 electricians plus all of the office staff. That number will of course rise as more staff will need be taken on before completion is finally achieved.

As pictured below, the traditional ceremony of the planting of a pine tree on the roof "Topping Out" was held once the actual physical structure was completed. Now the hard grind is to complete the internal fit out, façade and landscaping to finish the job on time.

The building itself is the largest social infrastructure building project since the construction of Parliament House in Canberra

Our electricians have a huge task in front of them to complete all the elements of the Electrical, Comms and Data installations on time, which will require a lot of hard work in a very tight timeline and tight spaces. They are proving they are up to the tasks.
